Assessment: Will You Succeed in Your New Role?

Take the following assessment to make sure that you have all of the bases covered when you start a new role.

Statement	No	So-So	Yes
I am clear about my performance expectations in the new role – beyond what the formal job description says.
I have a clear understanding of what motivates my manager.
I have a clear understand of what success means for my manager.
I understand my manager’s communication style and how to adapt to it.
I know what motivates each member of my team.
I know the culture of the organization and fit in.
I have identified the people with the most informal power in the organization and have a plan to build relationships with them.
I have identified the political landmines to avoid during my first 100 days.
I have a good sense of pacing and am striking the right balance between observing/learning and taking action to get results.
I have a development plan to continue to improve my skills and get even better in my new role.

If you checked No or So-So even once, your success may be at risk. This transition period is crucial. Don't leave success to chance.
